CONCEPT YACHT BY MORPHEUS LONDON, HODGDON

The design studio Morpheus London has teamed with America's oldest boatbuilder, Hodgdon Yachts, to create a limo tender design. The concept, Ostrea, takes inspiration from the relationship between the oyster and the pearl, with the designers seeing the limo as "the pearl"—a small, luxurious mode of transport to the mothership. The exterior lines appear masculine and streamlined, while the interior is drawn with leather and chrome detailing. hodgdonyachts.com

SOUTHERN WIND LAUNCHES CROSSBOW

Southern Wind Shipyard has launched 104-foot (31.7-meter) Crossbow, the builder's fifth in its 102 Series. Designed for performance cruising by Farr Yacht Design and Nauta Design, Crossbow marks Southern Wind's third raised-salon model in the series. Her interior, dressed in light oak with a walnut sole and stainless steel detailing, includes an owner's stateroom forward, crew quarters aft and a galley separate from the main living area. Raised from the flush deck, the low-profile deckhouse disguises Crossbow's high ceilings and large windows. Her tender garage holds up to a 13.7-foot (4.2-meter) dinghy. sws-yachts.com

PROJECT ATLAS UNVEILED

Mondomarine, in cooperation with Northrop & Johnson and naval architect Gregory C. Marshall, has announced the concept design Atlas, a 137-foot (42-meter) expedition yacht. Atlas is designed to sleep 10 guests in five staterooms, including an on-deck master suite with an optional his-and-her bathroom or a larger wardrobe. Two of the lower-deck guest staterooms can join to form a VIP suite, and all of the ensuite staterooms are drawn with large windows. The exterior layout emphasizes social gathering areas, including a sundeck, a beach club and pool area, and a foredeck with sunbathing. Atlas is designed to hold up to a 27-foot (8.2-meter) tender plus a separate crew tender, a submarine, four PWC and scuba gear. mondomarine.mc
